MUNICIPAL ORDINANCE DIRECTORY

The CPRC launched its municipal ordinance directory on its website in FY23. This resource is intended to assist community decision makers in establishing best practice policy for reducing the impact of youth cannabis use on public health.

The directory highlights ordinances in several different topic areas, and was created in consultation with legal and public health experts. We intend to expand the directory as new best practice ordinances are identified.

RESOURCES

The CPRC crafted a resource guide, expanding on a previous resource, illustrating the differences between regulated Delta-9 THC and other, unregulated cannabis derivatives, including solutions for addressing their sale and outcomes within communities.

WONDERING ABOUT THE DIFFERENCES BETWEEN CANNABIS PRODUCTS?

The difference between Marijuana and Hemp, and their derivatives, starts with a percentage:

0.3%

Amount of Delta-9 THC present in the cannabis plant

MARIJUANA

HEMP

These products can only be legally obtained from a licensed dispensary in Illinois.

Due to regulatory differences, products with hemp-derived compounds can be found for sale in various locations.

The Cannabis Derivatives infographic explains the difference between products considered marijuana and those derived from hemp, which have significant regulatory differences. Downloadable and print copies are available to communities and can be used to work on point of sale strategies.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

The CPRC is available to provide one-on-one assistance to municipalities, coalitions, and law enforcement agencies working on cannabis policy. In FY23, the CPRC provided technical assistance around cannabis marketing policy, point of sale, and cannabis-derived/synthesized cannabis products.
